FORGOTTEN MEMORY

Hey guys it's me and I am re-doing this whole story because one it's not really that good and I thought of a better plot and a better beginning and ending to it all. YAY! Now I am sorry for not being on that much I have been really busy lately. Anyways this is my KH story and it is a re-write of the original story known as Forgotten Memory. The original sucked in my mind and it had an imbalanced plot because I was busy enough when I started it and then I basically said fuck English im going my own way with writing and yeah that wasn't a good idea. Anyways I hope you enjoy this version.

FORGOTTEN MEMORY

WAITING

Afield at dusk

_What things for dream there are when specter-like,
>Moving among tall haycocks lightly piled,
I enter alone upon the stubble field,
>from which the laborers' voices late have died,
And in the antiphony of afterglow
>And rising full moon, sit me down
Upon the full moon's side of the first haycock

>And lose myself amid so many alike.

_I dream upon the opposing lights of the hour,
>Preventing shadow until the moon prevail;
I dream upon the nighthawks peopling heaven,
>Each circling with vague unearthly cry,
Or plunging headlong with fierce twang afar;
>And on the bat's mute antics, who would seem
Dimly to have made out my secret place,
>Only to lose it when he pirouettes,
And seek it endlessly with purblind haste;
>On the last swallow's sweep; an on the rasp
In the abyss of odor and rustle at my back,
>That, silenced by my advent, funds once more,
After an interval, his instrument,
>And tries once-twice-thrice if I be there;
And on the worn book of old-golden song
>I brought not here to read, it seems, but hold
And freshen in this air of withering sweetness;
>But on the memory of one absent, most,
For whom these lines when they shall greet her eye.

PROLOUGE **

_Destiny Islands is one of the most peaceful places you could ever be. Yeah sure there might be a little drama here and there with people but usually nothing bad really ever happens here, but there are a lot of mysteries that happen here with a few of the people; which is what this story is about. There is this mystery girl with beautiful burgundy dyed hair, ivory skin, petite and well fit body, a little small with height, and the most beautiful cerulean eyes anyone has ever seen.
>Along with this mystery girl is her brother who has brown spiky hair, a little tanned skin, toned body, also a little small in height but is taller than the girl, and has the most striking cerulean eyes that anyone has ever known on Destiny Islands.
These 2 kids don't have any parents or any family. The Boy has friends but not many and not even they know much about him. The girl usually is at this island that you have to ride a boat in order to get there and she is usually practicing her skills in combat with her brother whenever he is there. Her brother can be found usually in town asking many or just a few questions to people and is always looking for something. For what we don't know but maybe we might know sooner or later but then again that's the future that's all a mystery for each of us as well that we learn every day.
>These kids are looking for something though and I hope they find it because looking at their lives now they could use some good.

Short yes I know but then again this is the prologue don't worry the story is just beginning and there are many things here that will surprise you and make you do a double take most likely.
>Please review what you think so far and have a great week.
